

CRITIQUE

encou
"Rea

Then she went to the blackboard and printed the alphabet in enormous square capitals,

"Ben" was about six-and-a-half feet tall, coming from the tracks; he lived on raw squirrels and my cats he was afraid, that's why his hands were bloodstained. If you saw an animal, you would never wash it. Blood on his face was a long, jagged scar that ran across his face; what teeth he had were yellow and rotten; his eyes popped, and he drooled most of the time."

Boo was about six-
judging from his tracks;
squirrels and any cats he c why his hands were bloodsta an animal raw, you could n ood off. There was a long, ja n across his face; what teet y and rotten; his eyes p
most of the time."

cotton and fed hogs from the time they were able to walk, were immune to imaginative literature. Miss Caroline came to the end of the story and said, 'Oh, my, wasn't that nice?' Then she went to the blackboard and printed the alphabet in enormous square capitals, turned to the class and asked, 'Does anybody know what these are?'"

"Atticus was feeble, but nearly fifty. When he and I asked him why he was so old, he said he got started late, which we felt reflected upon his abilities and manliness. He was much older than the parents of our school contemporaries, and there was nothing Jem or I could say about him when our classmates said, "No father."

"Neighbors bring food with death and flowers with sickness and little things in between. Boo was our neighbor. He gave us two soap dolls, a broken watch and chain, a pair of good-luck pennies, and our lives."

to know the right people, and I've some important connections.
are very important in this I'd be surprised how many favors."

when he kissed this girl, and unutterable visions to her his mind would never romp mind of God. So he waited, moment longer to the tuning-een struck upon a star. Then he his lips' touch, she blossomed flower and the incarnation was

...were careless people, Tom and Daisy — smashed up things and creatures and then retreated back into their money or their vast carelessness, or whatever it was that kept them together, and let other people clean up the mess they had made. . . . I shook hands with Mr. Wilson because it seemed silly not to, for I felt that I was talking to a child."

class and asked, 'Does anybody these are?'"

feeble: he was nearly fifty. When I asked him why he was so old, he said, "I felt like I was old." He was older than the parents of our school's temporarys, and there was nothing Jem could say about him when our classmates said, "My father—" sweet talcum. People moved slowly then. They ambled across the square, shuffled in and out of the stores around it, took their time about everything. A day was twenty-four hours long but seemed longer. There was no hurry, for there was nowhere to go, nothing to buy and no money to buy it with, nothing to see outside the boundaries of Maycomb County. But it was a time of vague optimism for some of the people: Maycomb County had recently been told that it had nothing to fear.

"Neighbors bring food with death and flowers with sickness and little things in between. Boo was our neighbor. He gave us two soap dolls, a broken watch and chain, a pair of good-luck pennies, and our lives."